CHIEF EXECUTIVE NOT TO BE SCARED.

Foolish Threats of Unions to Fight Him
Do Not Change the Laws.

He Makes Applicable to All Departments of the Government the Principle He Enunciated in the Miller Case Opposition to the President Party Founded Upon Mistaken Ideas as to His Real Attitude.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES]

WASHINGTON. Aug. 20.—[Exclusive Dispatch]—High Washington officials were compelled to meet the President today as to the advisability of issuing a semi-official statement regarding his position toward organized labor. The action of the Engineers' Union of Chicago determined them to take this action. They believe the movement led by the Chicago engineers may become widespread, although they declare it founded upon a false conception of the President's attitude. The statement in contemplation would set forth his opposition to the doctrine "the right of every man to work," and will deny the reports which recently have been made from Washington which make him out as engaged in warfare with labor unions.

"While it is true," said one member of the Cabinet who remains in Washington, "that various departments have been making inquiry regarding the action of labor unions where members are in government employ, these investigations are not begun for the purpose of fighting unions. The Miller case in the Government Printing Office called the matter to the attention of the President and he wanted to know how far spread was the practice of permitting unions to run government business."

"President Roosevelt believes in organized labor, but he does not believe that the protection of the rights of labor organizations are paramount to the laws of the nation. Neither does he countenance force, coercion or other forms of lawlessness by unions to attain their ends. His action in the case has been taken after he has consulted with conservative labor leaders, and not one of the men with whom he talked disagreed with him, or his argument. I might call attention to the fact that such men as Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and others have wrought much for labor's cause have been silent on the investigations. Happily, the result of the investigation has been to show that except in a few instances labor has done nothing in contradiction of the law. Of course, there are numerous instances where the radical leaders have made ill-advised outbursts regarding the men employed by the government, who do not belong to labor unions, but it is evident that such radicals will be found among the thousands of men employed by the government."

Arrest of Man Who Has Been Charting Special Trains and Incidentally Passing Bad Checks.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK. Aug. 20.—Alfred Crossby, 21 years of age, who says his home is in White Plains, was today charged with passing two worthless checks at the Waldorf-Astoria. The police believe they have the man who has been spending the past few weeks in the West chartering special trains and posing as the son of Stephen B. Elkins.

Owen took a suite at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, and Manager Boldt cashed for him a check for $50 drawn on the First National Bank, and signed by S. B. Elkins.

I am Senator Elkins's son, and I am a little short of ready cash; he gave me a little over $100 to the First Avenue Hotel and engaged a room. Then they wandered to the City of Mexico and was placed in the Coliseum, and from there took a train to Sonora and finally up into California again. It had been used by Father Junipero Serra, founder of the California missions. It stands about three inches high and on the top are three sets of marks showing the metal had been tested. It was beautifully gilded on the inside.

"The observance of Memorial Day is of a character to assure us that the spirit of the founders of the land is still in sympathetic with the beauties and impressiveness of our service. There have been, as there always will be, some who will disregard the obligations that rest upon all the people to pay tribute to those whose valor secured them the blessing and the security which the future generations will inherit and share. We must be well pleased with the participation in the ceremonies of the school children of the land. I believe that in this direction we have made great progress.

"The right of the President authorized the publication of a statement which went to each member of his Cabinet July 22. The letter was signed by Mr. Barnes, the Judge-advocate General, and is as follows:

"My Dear Sir: The President directs me to send to you herewith for your information copies of two letters sent to the Government Printing Office, which define the attitude of the administration in connection with the 'Bookbinders' Union. The President has plainly stated to the members of the G.A.R. that the principle is to indicate the policy of the President in similar cases.

BUSINESS.

For the week ended yesterday the local bank clearings aggregated $5,757,565.95, as compared with $4,382,025.45 for the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 39.5 per cent. For the same week in 1902 the clearings amounted to $2,983,306.15. Business is everywhere reported satisfactory.

Buying orders near the close brought a rally in wheat at Chicago, but the market closed at 80@81c for 5c per cent. in the New York stock market yesterday led to the expectation that a period of dullness and sluggish fluctuations lie before the speculators. No gains were shown yesterday by a number of Pacific and Trunk lines.

TO "DOWN" THE PRESIDENT.

All the way from Chicago comes the information that a "national movement" is to be started to defeat the President for renomination, and for re-election if that fight in the nominating convention should be unsuccessful. "Members of the Engineers' Union" of Chicago announced this program after reading the President's ruling to the effect that non-union men shall not be discriminated against in the performance of work for the government. Ned C. McCallum, business agent (walking delegate) of the engineers' organization in Chicago, is to start the movement in Illinois, and presumably "organized labor" from one end of the land to the other, is to take up and carry forward the concerned movement to "down" the President. "This rule of Roosevelt's," declares Walking Delegate McCallum, "will defeat him in the next Presidential campaign."

It is not apparent, as yet, to what extent the walking delegate of the Engineers' Union of Chicago voices the sentiments of trade unionists generally. The issue referred to has been newly raised, and sufficient time has not yet elapsed for the taking of a consensus of opinion on the subject. But, if past experiences are any criterion, we may expect the enthusiastic endorsement of the movement to "down" the President, by the great majority of those who have placed their consciences in the keeping of the walking delegate, and who are ready to do his bidding, right or wrong.

That the President is absolutely right in the position which he has taken on this question, is true beyond all successful denial. Inasmuch as he is right, he may be demanded upon to maintain his position at all hazard. He will not be moved by threats from any source, for he is not the sort of man to be forced into a false attitude by attempted coercion. The American people will sustain the President in the position which he has assumed on this question. He may experience some opposition in the nominating convention from truckling, cowardly, weak-kneed and weak-minded politicians, but he will be nominated notwithstanding such impotent opposition. He may lose, at the polls, the votes of some trade-union fanatics, but for every such vote which he loses, because of his firm stand in behalf of the right, he will gain at least two from Americans who believe in right and justice and fair play; in equal opportunities for every citizen, before the law, and in special privileges for none.

But the principle involved in the President's action is above and beyond any political consideration. If the question should be taken into party politics, the President need have no fear. It will make no difference in his course of action whether the question be taken into politics or not. But if it should take that course, both the President and the Republican party can well afford to meet the issue. Most party considerations are of little weight when a great principle is involved. A great principle is at stake in the President's attitude on this question, as indicated in the orders which he has issued in establishing the rule of the "open shop" in all government departments.

The issue should be fairly understood. The walking delegates of anything permanent? You can reckon them up, almost, on the fingers of one hand—Leadville, Cripple Creek, Tombstone, Dawson and a few others. There are always enough selfish, unscrupulous men to spread exaggerated reports in regard to such strikes, for the purpose of making money from those who rush in, either in the shape of transportation, or dry goods, or war goods, or gambling, or in some other way. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred these early reports are grossly exaggerated, and even when they are not, the valuable locations are usually taken up before the rush begins. The best service, in my judgment, is usually for those who open a store, or furnish some article of necessity to the population, but this, also, is usually much overdone nowadays, and a mining camp not more than a month old abounds with luxuries and conveniences that would not have been dreamed of twenty-five years ago in a camp that had been established for years.

A man who has a little spare cash, and has no permanent job that he would have to relinquish, may gain a little useful experience, by making a trip to a new camp like this, and may possibly be so fortunate as to tumble into a chance for making money, but it is the height of folly for those who are making a fair living to permit themselves to be tempted by these exaggerated stories of golden wealth. The fact is, that the mineral possibilities of the Southwest have been grossly exaggerated by careless writers and the abuse of superlatives in the local newspapers, which statements have been taken up and repeated, parrot-like, by writers who should know better. There is, undoubtedly, vast mineral wealth in this southwestern section of the country, and much of it yet undeveloped, but deposits of valuable minerals are not, as some writers claim, as thick as raisins in a Christmas pudding. If so, gold would not be worth $20 an ounce, nor would so many people be troubled about how they are going to pay their grocery bills.

It is well, perhaps, that the issue has been raised at this time. If it must be decided, the sooner the better. For years past, in the giving out of government work, the great body of the people have been discriminated against, in favor and to the benefit of secret proscriptive organizations, falsely claiming to represent the laboring men of the country. It is time for this intolerable state of affairs to cease, and this is ripe for the determination of the question whether this government is to be conducted for and in behalf of the whole people, or for and in behalf of a clannish and un-American band of proscriptionists, whose methods and sympathies are wholly foreign to the genius of our free institutions.

Possibly the reason that the Colombian Senate is going to re-open the canal question is that it belongs to the fraternity that won't say bought. Shouldn't be the case, a few carloads of dynamite for the transcontinental railroads will be in order.

Fort McHenry is the place to be abandoned for, as far as I can see, the determination of the question whether this government is to be conducted for and in behalf of the whole people, or for and in behalf of a clannish and un-American band of proscriptionists, whose methods and sympathies are wholly foreign to the genius of our free institutions.

It is important that this issue shall be decided; and there need be no fear as to the result. If the people are afforded an opportunity to decide this issue, they will decide it right.

THE LATEST GOLD RUSH.

The latest mining excitement in the Southwest is at Kingman, the county seat of Mojave county, Ariz., in the center of a section that is known to be highly mineralized, and has been worked for many years. The new strike is, of course, the "biggest" strike ever made in the United States"—or, in the world—according to the fertility of the imagination or the elasticity of the conscience of the correspondent, and also, perhaps, according to the interest which he may have in getting a great number of men with some loose change in their pockets to rush in.

If it would be any comfort to him, Capt. Barr ought to let Sir Thomas win on those days when the winds are so light that there's nothing doing in the way of a race. Such as yesterday, when that old fortress was under fire as to inspire Francis Scott Key's immortal lyric.

The Caesars fleet is moving on the Turk's works overland, and the Sick Man of Europe must be feeling almost seasic, in addition to his other forms of illness, thinking about what may happen when those volleys begin flying.

Mrs. Fish makes complaint that too much is being done about the "dear-dear"—the "biggest" and "the biggest" strike ever made in the United States"—or, in the world—according to the fertility of the imagination or the elasticity of the conscience of the correspondent, and also, perhaps, according to the interest which he may have in getting a great number of men with some loose change in their pockets to rush in.

If it would be any comfort to him, Capt. Barr ought to let Sir Thomas win on those days when the winds are so light that there's nothing doing in the way of a race. Such as yesterday,

The lady who shows a tendency to burn the weeds off her back lot would do well to send in a hurry-up call for the fire department before striking the match in the place appointed for such purposes.

With $15,000,000 in Washington available for trying on national irrigation it looks very much as if the long campaign made for that cause by this great religious daily hadn't been entirely in vain.

There is one good thing about this hot weather, the wind that seems to blow just the same as it did "yesterday." The pole diabolos are still flying around the red glare, the bombs bursting in air" when that old fortress was under fire as to inspire Francis Scott Key's immortal lyric.

MINES AND MINING.
KINGMAN NO PLACE
FOR SMALL OPERATORS.

SOCIAL PROSPECTOR ADVISES
OTHERS TO GO SLOW.

Should Not Be in a Hurry to Enter
New Camp—Rockefeller Said to Have Bought Interest in Mexican Iron Roughs—Strike in Bradshaw.

"Don't be in a hurry to come" is the advice given by a prospector who is "sitting up" in the camp of Kingman and who is said to have a rich gold strike reported to have been made recently.

"There is a great rush on, and the camps and cañons are dotted with the camp of many prospectors, who are looking for gold-bearing rocks," he writes. "It is difficult to say just what success these prospectors will have in getting the situation out of the way, but the situation has been greatly exaggerated."

According to the reports that have come from the camp of the new find the depth of ore already located carry values varying from $100 to $1,000 per ton. It is reported that a little in excess of the value of the new find,
in fact it is reported that the ore
is not average.

"The town is full of rumors, but I don't believe anything like the claims made for the camp, but the country around the mine is very promising, and as ore running out of the ton can be mined at a profit in the locality or in strike, there will probably make a good deal of money for investors who are not large capital."

The camp is for the small operator, a man with little capital, and it would be better to wait and it would be better to keep away until the conditions have become somewhat more favorable.

"Don't get out of stock" is the parting word from the man on the ground, who following the present excitement, will come the formation of such a committee to take care of the interests of the ore from the "big one" was assayed yesterday by a chemist, and the results not quite as expected, so the amount of the ore as "a train."

REPORTS MISERABLE.

(EXCERPT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
PHOENIX, Aug. 20.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Only meager reports have reached here concerning the Kingman mine, though all are to the effect that the excitement continues. One man who has an interest in a group of eight claims writes to friends in Prescott that he thinks it is a good strike, though his report is not definite. Another friend reports that the miners from the various statements and he claims to be an amateur. He says the ore is not good and does not bear, though it as-tays from a train to $100 a ton, showing an average of about $10 a ton. Speculations previously, however,
show a good and will hold.

The Denver company which is contracting the largest operation is known as the Superior Gold Mining and Milling Company, and is capitalized at $12,- 000,000 according to a Kingman paper.
It is also announced that Dennis Sullivan, one of the Colorado millionaires, has gone over to purchase a twenty-stamp mill to be erected as soon as possible.
The granite is not usually considered a good one in this country, but the miners say it is good.
The Belief mine in this county has a good ledge of granite ore at a depth of 300 feet, closely resembling the mines sent here from Kingman.

ROCKEFELLER IN MEXICO.
It is stated from New York with certainty that John D. Rockefeler has decided to take part in the development of the iron and steel trade of Mexico. His new corporation,
the United Fuel & Steel Company, is in full control, is to be engaged completely for the Rockefeler plant in Mexico. The company, Mr. Rockefeler it is said, has made a complete connection with the government of the State of Sonora, and negotiations have been made for the erection of an immense steel mill on the Pacific Coast.

The industrial director of the United Fuel & Steel Corps., Rockefeller, has the increasing value of raw materials, the iron and steel trade, he believes, will be the greatest possible movements.

He dwelt upon the great danger brought upon the country by the Spanish-American War, and how satisfactory the action of the United States was taken by the legislators at the time.

A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to the distinguished legislative body by the young men at
the meeting, who addressed, augmented by personal thanks publicly extended by
Mr. Patterson. An informal reception followed the meeting.

ASSET CURRENCY PLAN.

Congressman Prince Expresses His Views on Currency Legislation Before Local Bank Clerks.

"Currency Legislation" was the topic of a talk given last night in Blanchard Hall before the Los Angeles chapter of the American Institute of Bank Clerks by Hon. George Prince, Congressman from Illinois and a member of the House Committee on Banking and Finance.

The audience was small but extremely appreciative, and was presided over by W. C. Patterson, president of the Los Angeles National Bank. The speaker dwelt first upon the great public responsibility attached to the bankers, and then turned to the question of the gold standard.

He declared that he had come to believe there is no finer set of men in the nation than those engaged in banking at the present day. He then reviewed the question of finance as it is considered from the legislative standpoint, and the questions and debates that lead to the change of the gold standard measure in 1890.

"I believe in a limited and graded asset currency plan," said the Congressman. "I believe that during the next session of Congress there will be some movement in this direction, either by the government or by the states.
In time the bottom must fall out of the present plan of circulation based on bonds."

"It lies between $2,500,000 and $2,000,- 000 a day to pay the expenses of this government. This sum Uncle Sam has got somewhere else, however, and the other bond the government or individual state taxation to obtain it during a time of peace will speedily be put out of office by the people."

A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to the distinguished legislative
body by the young men at
the meeting, who addressed, augmented by
personal thanks publicly extended by
Mr. Patterson. An informal reception

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

For New Members.

The Ladies' Union of the Orchard Avenue Baptist Church of this city will tender a reception to new members tonight in the church.

Pumping Plant Burned.

A pumping plant of the Parker Oil Company, on Main Avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets, was destroyed by fire last evening, together with a tank of oil. The cause of the fire is not known. The loss will amount to $300.

For the Veterans.

Local G.A.R. headquarters will be reopened at the Chamber of Commerce today for the accommodation of the veterans who will be gathered from the city from the encampment in San Francisco. The delegation which went north from here is expected back to-day.

Occidental's New Building.

The Building Committee for Occidental College will meet on the 20th inst. to decide upon plans for the new main school hall to be built on the Riverbank campus recently dedicated. President G. W. Washworth left the city yesterday for a three weeks' visit to Portland, Ore.

Grandpa Now.

There are a good many people in Los Angeles who are interested to know that M. J. Newman is a grandfather now. Yesterday afternoon word was received that Mrs. Alfred Sutro of San Francisco, formerly Miss Rose Newmark of this city, had given birth to a daughter at the Sutro home in San Francisco, No. 356 Gough street.

Hot Rivet.

Hundreds of people were overboard on the river front by the falling of a red hot rivet from the new skyscraper at Fourth and Spring streets at noon yesterday. The rivet fell on the roof of a one-story restaurant establishment located at 403½ South Spring and burned one end of a 2x4 stick of wood. An alarm of fire brought the companies and several hundred people to the scene, when the proprietor said: "Well, I don't care, I get free advertisements." A cup of water would have extinguished the fire.

Downtown at Chutes.

The delegates to the Afro-American Congress, which closed yesterday at Pasadena, will be entertained at Chutes Park, Long Beach, this evening. Mayor Snyder will address the assemblage and addresses will also be delivered by ex-Gov. J. J. C. Lusk, Dr. W. E. Cox, Rev. J. Edwards, the Glenwood and the Ivy Leaf, two friendly rival quartettes, who sing. Miss Pearl Lowry and Miss Anna Gandy will be present. The programme will extend from 7 to 11 o'clock.

Almost a Tragedy.

A runaway horse attached to a light buggy dashed through the crowd at the Chutes Park, Long Beach, last evening. That no one was killed or injured is considered almost a miracle by those who witnessed the incident. Some who were thrown from the carriage were standing at each corner, and between them and the curb were scores of persons. The driver, however, was the only one who was barely missing a number. A woman was leading four small children to a car, and to save them threw two to the curb. The other two were held by the curb. Then she fainted. The buggy struck a heavy wagon near the corner and the horse stripped itself of its harness and continued on its mad run.

BREVITIES.

A Fearful Struggle.

LIONS, LEOPARDS, PANTHERS.

FRANK C. BOSTICK, ANIMAL TRAINER, TRAPPED A LION WITH FIGHTING
BEASTS—FUTILE ATTEMPTS TO SUBDUING THEM AND ESCAPE—THEIR FINAL AT-TACK—RESCUE.

BY FRANK C. BOSTICK.
(Famous animal trainer and author of "Trains Wild Animals.")

THE life of an animal trainer is full of perils. They are part of his every-day routine. Some of them, however, stand out above all the rest in the memory.

The closest call I ever had in my life was at Atlantic City four summers ago. I had an animal exhibit on one of the piers at the time. When taking possession of the pier I had discovered some of the traps had been set. My exhibit would have to place my arena in the center of the auditorium, and keep the performing beasts in dens beneath it.

The purely exhibitive beasts I placed around the hall at the sides. The subterranean cages in the circle, mostly much on the plan of the arena, were in the lower division had space in its center for attendants to feed and water the animals. These lower cages were communicating, but shut off usually from each other by sliding doors.

Nine lions and a group of seven leopards, panthers and jaguars occupied these lower cages, the lions filling the cages of about one-half of the circle, and the leopards and their kind the other. When the lions were to perform grounds were to be covered over the doors open and drove them through the cages on their side to a runway, and thence up this run to the stage through a trap door opened to admit them. When they were on the stage this trap was closed. The leopards were handled similarly, the lions running the run from the outside of the circle and the leopard group from the other.

Lions haven't much use for leopards—that is, for live ones, anyway, and we must be careful to remember in no way could the opposing forces, singly or combined, have the opportunity to clash. When not performing the lions and leopards had their dens in their cages across the lower cage.

The trap door was of heavy oak, with two small snap locks. During the day of the mishap I was able to release one of my men and I made myself to a lock that had become impaired. I had enjoined him to have it fixed at once, but didn't consider the lions' main importance, feeling secure in the other lock, which worked perfectly.

The purpose of the locks was to prevent the lions from breaking out during the night when they were admitted to roar free around the lower circle, from one cage to another, finding their way to the arena. (It which at night for the greatest comfort of the factions.) I always kept the leopard group.

On this night, following an old habit, I had retired shortly after the performance. It had stormed all day, and we had closed early, the board was too easily practically deserted. Contrary to custom, and to my own, I had gone off for a swim and supper. As soon as the animals had been fed and watered the leopards were turned into the upper cages, and the lions below, and the doors pushed open, allowing the lions below their usual resting place to all the dens. I could not have slept more than half an hour when I suddenly awoke with a start. Some one was banging on my door and shouting. Confusedly I got up and went down, and was in the center of the room before I knew it. Running to the door, I opened it, I caught sight of the scared face of a pier's night watchman.

LENORE AGNEW, APPROXIMATELY.

Without waiting for him to speak, or considering my undressed state, I brushed by the man and sped down stairs. On the way down I recovered my composure. Below I could hear the roar of lions and snarls of leopards. I ran straight down the hallway of the menagerie. I stopped and hesitated whether I should return for my clothes. Increasing sounds of strife from below told me I was justified in going back.

Turning into the auditorium at the base of the stairway, through the half-gloom (menagerie lights are always lowered to the light), I saw the principal up roar to the arena. However, I saw what appeared to be a mix-up of the leopards. I had been feeding them in the dark. Several nights before the ground had been a free-for-all fight in the arena. As a consequence one had a badly lacerated foreleg, and the other a right eye, and the animal's wounded condition, I had a box placed in the arena at night, after closing time, to protect this leopard.

The box was about six feet long, wide and four high. It had ample air holes and a lock that snapped the training when a nail was driven in. I reached the arena swiftly. To enter the arena from the hall one had to pass through two doors, one on the outside leading to a subterranean corridor, and another from this corridor into the arena, the device being designed as a protection against the chance of a breakaway. I stepped into the auditorium, if, by accident, it passed through the arena door. Opening, then, this outer door, and snapping it behind me, I now followed—I proceeded to the arena door. Finding this second door open, I went toward the noisy mass, shouting commands, barking and snapping the whip. The animals were cowering, of about sixty feet. The fight was at my left. My flight from my bed to the arena was accomplished so quickly that I had not yet grown accustomed to the half-light.

MIX-UP OF LIONS AND LEOPARDS.

It struck me at once, though, even in the semi-darkness, that there were more animals in the fighting group than there should be. Instantly I concluded that the wounded leopard, whose name I do not know, had not been boxed, and that the others had again at him. Rushing over to the box, I flung the cover open. As I did so, the door closed and bolted. All the while I had been shouting, snapping the lash, but the brutes had paid no more attention to me than if I had been present. Jumping back from the box, I was just about to check myself from a fall onto the runway.

The trap door leading from the lions' cage was the arena door.

When I realized this I was momentarily paralyzed. I looked again. The trap was up enough.

It was the lions and leopards that were fighting. The impossible had happened.

The passing body of a leopard had bolted at a time when one or more of the lions roaming over the run below had been passing the trap. These had doubtless been an exchange of defiance and a raised roar from below had done the rest. I made these deductions much more quickly than I am telling of them.

Before I had been in delicate situations before, and had escaped serious disaster, I confess I felt apprehensive when I fully appreciated my new predicament.

The fight at my left was about the worst animal mix-up I've ever seen.

The up roar was deafening. The fight was the most intense of the lions, leopards, jaguars, and lions. To attempt to bring order out of this riot worse than folly. I therefore made my way to the top of the arena, intending to summon help.

TRAPPED WITH FIGHTING BEASTS.

Upon opening this door I got a fresh shock. In the hurry of my entrance I had neglected to fasten the arena door, leaving it in the corridor. Within the enclosure was Denver, the wickedest of the lions, frenzied from conflict and from its present imprisonment in strange and cramped quarters.

Involuntarily I slammed the arena door and made for the runway, to find the leopards, the jaguars and the tigers in the arena. It had been some little time, it seems, before they had discovered me. They had expected to find me made into a meal for the lions.

Not discovering any traces of me there, they had become very much concerned and puzzled. Then one of the leopards, the lame leopard and had started to get the bone ready for its return. The discovery of my sensible beast.

The intention—to the look cost me a month's inactivity. Three animals were injured so badly in the struggle that they had to be put to sleep.

How many animals had been captured?

Over forty years ago," said Dr.

LION ATTACKS HORSE
IN REDLANDS ORCHARD.HUNGER-CRAZED BEAST GIVES RANCHER A SCARE.

Huge Cat Jumps on Horse's Back, but Flees After Fierce Struggle. Druggists Ignore Order of Trustees to Take Out Special Liquor Permits.

REDLANDS. Aug. 20.—A. Appleton yesterday had the startling experience that made him wonder for the moment whether he was in the wilds of darkest Africa or civilised Southern California. While cultivating in an orange orchard on the heights above the mountains he came across among the trees toward him. Appleton was paralysed with fright, and letting the horse loose he fled. The horse followed him upon the back of one of the horses he had been driving, and sank its teeth and claws in the animal's flank.

The intense heat at the Colton ranch has caused the animals to stop all operations until cool weather. Most of the employees have refused to work while the thermometer is hanging around 100 degrees.

W. G. Paulsen, reputed half to part of an immense New York estate, has returned here with a strange tale. He said he had been traveling for months through Central California. The cost will be about $40,000.

GIRL'S LIFE CLAIMED
BY FIRE AT RIVERSIDE.MOLLY WALTERS LIVES AN HOUR
WITH TERRIBLE BURNS.

Oil Stove Explodes and Sets Fire to Her Clothing—Lucky Black Scale Not Suffering Much from Hot Weather. Bridge Bids Opened.

RIVERSIDE. Aug. 20.—Miss Molly Walters, a twenty-two-year-old girl employed by the Brown family, who live in the house formerly occupied by W. A. Thompson, this morning, died at 8:30 o'clock this morning. She had lighted a stove, which burns oil fed from a tank. The cup was too full, and she tried to carry the stove out of doors, fearing trouble with it. She was scalded in the kitchen when the oil exploded. The burning oil was thrown over her clothing, which once caught fire. Though help came, her clothing was entirely burned off, and her body completely charred and blackened. She was kept under the care of children for an hour, when she expired.

Death was started yesterday by W. M. Brandt, agent Justice of Peace and City Marshal. W. M. Brandt received a large amount of "hooch" barrels of beer and barrels of whisky. Brandt, the officers took the barrels and oil and pine tar and the contraband goods were captured in a raid. Brandt asks for $24.62 in case the goods have been used up or cannot be delivered.

VENTURA COUNTY.

ESCAPE TO STOP TRAINS.

ESPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.

VENTURA. Aug. 20.—The announced change in the running of Southern Pacific trains between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara will not take place on Sunday last. The change was the Southern Pacific's sop to Venturians, put out to appease a wrath which the railroad company had aroused against it at Ventura by refusing to stop its Coast Line at the town. The people united in a boycott of the railroad, with the result that the company was losing over $150 a day on freight shipments. The trains were being turned toward ships and steamers which touched at this port.

It is learned from a railroad source that the Southern Pacific will soon be re-established, and that trains will stop at Ventura as formerly.

VENTURA NOTES.

The bean men fear considerable injury has been done lime beans by the present hot spell of weather, which has continued for several weeks.

The heat seems to kill the small growing bean in the pod and arrest its development.

Besides this there has been an absence of the usual summer fog, which have left the bean field in condition to stand a hot, dry siege at this time. Farmers are worried over the matter, though a milder atmosphere later may bring the beans out all right.
